

Good news story – Troy, Priscilla & Terrance

Word Transcript

My name is Troy. I'm 20 years old, and I live here in Munster. Binar Sports organized a tournament to go over to Malaysia and play basketball against a bunch of other talented and gifted basketball teams who were either representing professional teams or full countries as well, as so we were able to just go over there and not only play basketball games with but share our culture as well.

Growing up in a big family, sports was always something that we revolved ourselves around and we started off with football traditionally, but once we moved to basketball I just fell in love with it. There are so many things that basketball does for not just me but a lot of young kids especially indigenous kids as well. It's not just there for a sport, it's an outlet for anger, to meet up with new people and really just grow as a person.

I'm Priscilla; I'm sixteen years old and living in Munster. The competition it made me want to pursue basketball a lot more just because basketball has taken me places such as taken me overseas, meeting new people, seeing other people's cultures and stuff.

I'm Terrence, I'm 17 at the moment and I'm from Munster. I definitely would encourage a lot of younger kids whether or not it's basketball, you know just really find something that you're passionate for thrive in it and just keep trying.
